One Third of All U. S. Families Are Not Saving Wastepaper

By DR. GEORGE GALLUP
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

PRINCETON, N. J., July 7.—Although more than six months have passed since the launching of the U. S. Victory Waste Paper Campaign, about one-third—roughly 11,500,000—of all American households still say they are not saving waste paper regularly for the drive.

At the same time, the number of households saving waste paper regularly has jumped from about 18,000,000 as of February to roughly 22,000,000 today.

These findings are based on a survey conducted throughout the nation by the Gallup Poll at the request of newspaper sponsors of the poll.

Campaign officials still have a big job ahead. For example, about one-quarter of those questioned representing about 8,500,000 households, admitted they are not yet personally convinced of the need for saving waste paper, although salvage officials point out it is the nation's number one critical war material.

Moreover, of some seven million families who report that they have to carry their salvaged paper to waste paper scrap depots—as contrasted to those who say their waste paper is picked up—more than half say they think they could save more paper if someone came around regularly to pick it up.

Three-quarters of the people questioned said they had no criticism to offer of the way the drive is being conducted in their own communities.

Most of the criticisms offered by the remaining quarter centered about the irregularity of collections, lack of organized drive, in communities, and the fact that many people are not sold on the need for saving waste paper.

Stock Market Prices Improve With Selected Issues Strong

By VICTOR EUBANK

NEW YORK, July 7 (AP)—The stock market looked considerably better today although obviously still suffering slightly from technical frustration.

While many leaders found the going a bit rough from the start, investment demand revived for selected oils, rails, utilities, motors, aircrafts and specialties. Steels got a leg up in the final hour. Although minus marks were plentiful, gains or fractions to 2 or more points were well distributed with a number of favorites at 7-year peaks.

Transfers totaled 1,277,430 shares compared with 1,713,100 the day before. It was the lowest volume for a full session since June 9.

Prominent on the advance were Phillips Petroleum, Houston Oil, Texas Pacific Land Trust, Barnsdall, Nickel Plate common and preferred, Santa Fe, Delaware and Hudson, Public Service of N. J., Standard Gas per cent preferred, White Motor, Studebaker, Willys-Overland, Chrysler, U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Eastman Kodak, Allied Chemical, Coca-Cola, Pepsi-Cola, Canada Dry, Maytag, Budd Mfg., Boeing, United Aircraft, American Car and Foundry and Western Union.

Among losers were International Harvester, Schenley, J. C. Penney, Oliver Farm, Deere, Montgomery Ward, Baltimore and Ohio, Great Northern, du Pont and Johns-Manville.

Upward curb leasers were Phoenix Securities, Glen Alden Coal, Cities Service and Republic Aviation. The aggregate here was 421,350 versus 513,470 yesterday.

Despite an uneven appearance the bond market recorded enough gains to advance most of the group averages.

Governor Dewey as A "Young Man"

WE SHALL HEAR a lot from the New Deal political press agents in this campaign about the youthfulness of Mr. Dewey. We shall be reminded time after time that, should he be elected, he would be the youngest man ever chosen to the presidency.

Dewey is 42—born March 24, 1902—and, if elected, would be inaugurated January 20, or sixty-three days before his forty-third birthday. Theodore Roosevelt, the youngest chief executive on record, took the oath of office forty-three days before his forty-third birthday, having been born October 27, 1858. Thus, Dewey would clip the record by twenty days.

The present generation seems to regard the flight of time and to reckon shifting boundaries between youth and middle age somewhat differently than those of other years. Yet, as the New York Herald Tribune observes, it is a rather odd counting of what constitutes youthfulness in calling Dewey a "young man."

"It is hard to understand," it says, "just how 42 can be called young in a world which has not yet discarded the Scriptural measurement of 'threescore and ten' as man's average life span. Common sense would, we think, call Governor Dewey middle-aged, or at least in that satisfactory, unspecified status known as the 'prime of life.' Why one must become an elder statesman before becoming a statesman at all is something which needs a bit of explaining, either here or in Washington, where an over-aged cabinet persists in getting older."

"Charles John Fox, history tells us, took his seat in Parliament at the age of 19. William Pitt was serving as prime minister of England at 24. Instances of this sort could be continued indefinitely. That country does well which can be served by youth—either in war or in peace."

"There has been, one recalls, a not yet forgotten title and saying that 'life begins at 40.' It is most likely that for Thomas E. Dewey life at Washington will begin at 42. In that event he will not, certainly, be too tired to rule the nation—or refuse to become tired of ruling."

It is pertinent to note that, while Dewey would become the youngest president, he would not be the only president who took office in the forties. In addition to Theodore Roosevelt, five presidents took office in that age bracket, namely, James K. Polk at 49, Franklin Pierce at 48, Ulysses S. Grant at 36 and Grover Cleveland at 47. But it is most unlikely that the Democratic party agents will refer to the fact that this year they are too anxious to picture Dewey as lying in his cradle.

The Shortest Span Across the Chasm

THE FACTOR of unrestricted production receives heavy emphasis in the Republican platform. Governor Dewey is expected to dwell on this theme many times during the campaign. Governor Warren referred to it several times in his keynote address in urging the creation of employment through the most expansive output of industry possible.

This not made work by the government, is America's cue. Should an unforeseen crisis appear, then the government must step in, of course, but private enterprise must be given every opportunity to function.

As for agriculture, the platform calls for unrestricted production so long as the problem of price-crushing surpluses is not present. It may become necessary at some future period to restrict some phases of farm production until surpluses are consumed, but at time certainly is not at hand. Agriculture today is called upon to supply not only the nation and the armed forces but Allied peoples and liberated nations. British leaders say that unrestricted production after the war will be the economic salvation of England. Russian industry will require reconstruction, and that of other nations will be in various stages of ruin. If the bureaucrats are routed on the home front, the United States will have a wide-open opportunity to produce unrestrictedly in industry and agriculture, providing the shortest possible span across the economic chasm from war to peace.

A Preview, Perhaps, Of Things To Come

ACCORDING to Pietro Caruso, former Fascist police chief of Rome and now a prisoner in Allied hands, Mussolini had a film made of the execution of his son-in-law, Count Galeazzo Ciano, and other members of the Fascist grand council sentenced to death for alleged betrayal of Fascism. It appears that Ciano, Marshal Emilio de Bono and two others were shot to death from behind by their executioners.

In Italy, but among the Nazis a steel-like cynicism still prevails. The execution of Count Ciano under the personal direction of his father-in-law may be a preview of Axis things to come when the Nazis start turning on themselves in the realization that their cause is wholly lost.

A Housing Estimate That Seems Too Low

IT CAN be said that the controversy over the demand for new dwelling units after the war has stimulated interest in the subject. The National Association of Real Estate Boards estimated that new units would be constructed after the war, at a rate of only about 300,000 a year. Since this is about half the average of other forecasts, other authorities promptly began work on the board's estimate.

The main reason for believing that the estimate is low is in the record. The record shows that during the five-year period from 1937 to 1941, new units were constructed at the rate of approximately 515,000 a year. Since there was much unemployment during these years, they could hardly be called building boom years. Thus it is unlikely that the construction rate after the war will be under this figure—unless, of course, there is a quick depression which will exhaust savings and discourage both individual and risk construction.

It should be noted that one reason for the difference is in the field of consideration. The board's estimates are reported to apply to urban dwellings, while other estimates lay heavy emphasis on the likelihood that the movement toward rural house building, not counted as farm home construction, which was pronounced in the five-year prewar period, will be continued.

A fair view seems to be that the combination of dwelling construction loss by reason of the war and the creation of new families with a savings reserve or a veterans' borrowing power will set off an era of new home building which certainly will exceed the real estate board's estimate.

An Electoral Precedent Of 1912 Is Recalled

RAYMOND MOLEY recalls that no one has mentioned an electoral precedent established by South Dakota in 1912. He believes it to be relevant in the case of Texas, Mississippi and South Carolina, now threatening to take their electoral votes off the Democratic reservation this year.

In May 1912, Theodore Roosevelt, Senator La Follette and President Taft ran in the presidential primary of South Dakota. T. R. won. In June the delegates selected in the South Dakota primary and pledged to T. R. bolted the Republican convention. Later they nominated T. R. in the rump convention.

Before the election the South Dakota electors on the Republican ticket announced that they would, if elected, refuse to vote for Taft but would cast their electoral vote for the state for Roosevelt. After their election, they carried out their plan.

Chosen by the voters as Republican electors, they refused to be bound by the nomination of their party. Names of the candidates for president did not appear on the South Dakota ballot, only the names of the party electors. Therefore the voters could vote only for the electors, and the electors voted as they pleased.

The precedent thus established shows that this can be done. It may be followed again this year, particularly if Roosevelt forces Henry Wallace on his party again, but, as heretofore cautioned by this newspaper, it is quite uncertain because the Roosevelt machine power does not count on it.

It's odd how those German soldiers are able to resist the great temptation to aim one of those rocket firing bombs in the direction of Berchtesgaden.

Hitler is not only losing his ill-gotten "Lebensraum" but, points out our curbside philosopher, he doesn't even have Elba any more.

The Man Who Bored His Wife

By MARSHALL MASLIN

A man said to me: "I wish I knew what to do about my wife." "What's the matter with your wife?" I said to the man. "Nothing," he said with her. "The trouble is with ME. I bore her. She can't stand me. I'm in love with her, but she isn't in love with me. I used to be a strawberry shortcake to her, but now I'm just dry bread and hardy that. . . . And I don't know what to do about it."

"She's been bored with me for ten years and we'll be celebrating (ha ha!) our fifteenth anniversary soon. For three or four years she was crazy about me. Everything I did interested her. We talked about things and went places together and had a good time. Sometimes we quarreled but we always made up our fights and she was sweeter than ever."

But now she doesn't care whether I'm dead or alive. She won't even bother to quarrel with me. She doesn't ask where I've been or where I'm going. I can leave at six in the morning and stay away until midnight and she doesn't seem to know I'm gone. She doesn't care enough to be jealous. I'm not even an irritation to her. She doesn't love me, doesn't hate me, is just bored. "She's as good as dead to me," he said. "They tell me what fun she is and our children think she's a wonderful sport. But I bore her and sometimes I catch her looking at me with a funny look in her eyes, as if she'd never seen me before and was wondering what to do with me, and I can't even say, 'Why are you looking at me like that?' Because she'd pretend she didn't understand. I'd just seem silly. . . . What do you think I should do to make my wife interested in me again?"

I looked at the man who asked that question. I was embarrassed and uncertain and I could give him no help. So I stilled and said: "I'm sure you are in one of those dull spots of marriage, Pete, and everything will be all right soon. Sure, she loves you. Anybody can see she does." But he shook his head doubtfully and went away from me. I wasn't much help and I don't think he had expected me to be.

A QUESTION SHE'LL HAVE TO DECIDE FOR HERSELF

Democrats Can See No Vote Advantage By Having Wallace on Roosevelt Ticket

By MARK SULLIVAN

Vice-President Henry A. Wallace, coming home from China, becomes—or continues to be—the center of something about whether he is to be renominated on the ticket with President Roosevelt. The reportable facts are few. Actually, the only fact having the faintest weight is in the mind and mood of one man. If Mr. Roosevelt wants Mr. Wallace renominated, it will be done. If Mr. Roosevelt chooses another, or is willing to take another, Mr. Wallace will not be renominated.

The wish for Mr. Wallace's renomination comes wholly from radicals and other left-wingers. These want Mr. Wallace desperately. They know that a vice president is elected for only one purpose: to succeed to the presidency if the incumbent dies. And the very existence of the left-wingers as a political force depends on their having a sympathetic president in office. If today President Roosevelt were to announce that he would not run for a fourth term, the power of the left-wingers would evaporate utterly.

Persons willing to vote for Mr. Roosevelt might shy away from the ticket if Mr. Wallace were his running mate. In the same spirit it is said, and undoubtedly is to some extent true, that if Mr. Roosevelt would take an old-school Democrat for his running mate, he might thereby disarm some of the party revolt in the South and elsewhere.

Little Support in Congress

There is a public interest larger than political expediency in Mr. Wallace's becoming president. The relations between him and Congress would be unpromising. Some Democrats, in Congress and elsewhere, do not think of Mr. Wallace as a Democrat. They think of him as at present a kind of maverick radical, and as in the past a Republican, coming from a Republican family—his father was secretary of agriculture in the administrations of Harding and Coolidge.

Some Democrats do not regard themselves as owing political loyalty to Mr. Wallace—as they do to Mr. Roosevelt—who has been a life-long Democrat. Some who like Mr. Wallace personally are utterly opposed to many of his views. Mr. Wallace in the presidency would have a party loyalty from old-school Democrats in Congress. This weighs heavily with the Democratic leaders who earnestly oppose Mr. Wallace's renomination.

Life and Death Matter

Similarly, if the coming Democratic national convention should nominate an old-school Democrat for vice-president, and if he should succeed to the presidency, again the power of the left-wingers would evaporate. Making sure that they have a sympathetic president in office is life and death to the left-wingers.

As for the old-school Democrats, to say they do not want to renominate Mr. Wallace is to state the case mildly. If any of them do not openly oppose Mr. Wallace, it is only because they apprehend that they may be obliged to take him, by Mr. Roosevelt's direction. If Mr. Roosevelt were to indicate, by so much as the lifting of an eyebrow, that he does not care whether Mr. Wallace is renominated—that would end Mr. Wallace's chances. The left-wingers in the convention might still support him. But the left-wingers in the convention, while the power of the delegates, their power in the convention depends, not so much on their number as on their closeness to Mr. Roosevelt. It is only when the purposes of the left-

Navy Is Expected To Reach Quota By End of Month

By CENTRAL PRESS

WASHINGTON—Some Washington observers anticipate that Selective Service calls will be trimmed this month when the navy is scheduled to reach its planned top strength of over 3,000,000 men.

It also is believed the fact that casualties in the European invasion were lower than expected will be reflected in reductions in the July draft calls.

The army reached its peak last April and the majority of inductions since then have been for the navy. When both branches reach their peak, only replacements will be required.

Terrifying Weapons

The Army Chemical Warfare Service has revealed a terrifying list of new weapons to remind the Axis that the United States is fully prepared for this type of warfare, particularly if the enemy tries any funny business with gas.

One new chemical weapon of the non-gas variety is a two-foot gasoline bomb which would spread a blazing mass of jelly over anything it hit and would be particularly effective in Japan's under-like cities.

Bills for the Axis

The United States probably will press Germany and Japan after the war for the cost of personal belongings, household furniture and other equipment of American foreign service employees destroyed or confiscated by the Nazis and Japs.

President Roosevelt has asked Congress for $27,000 to reimburse United States employees for such losses and Congress probably will want the money back.

Wilson May Leave WPB

WPB insiders pay little heed to constantly recurring reports of Charles E. Wilson's resignation which are supposed to denote discussion in the agency. Officials say that the WPB executive vice chairman and former president of General Electric has resigned regularly about every two weeks since last winter.

Wilson desires wholeheartedly to return to General Electric. The president got him to stay on last February but it is anticipated that one of these days soon the production expert will break away from WPB.

However, when he does leave, do not expect WPB to fall apart in a welter of confusion and dissension. Wilson and WPB Chairman Donald Nelson haven't seen eye to eye on some things but they have worked harmoniously together.

Reconversion Pattern Set

After considerable congressional agitation, the WPB has at last set a tentative pattern in a far-reaching decision on the question of postwar reconversion.

Nelson's ruling that aluminum and magnesium firms can resume civilian output provided they do not interfere with the war effort, in effect, excludes small business from priorities in returning to civilian production.

There have been repeated Congressional charges that WPB's proposal will throttle the small business man in the postwar era.

Recognition Differences

Recognition de facto is extended when an executive rules only a part of a country but apparently has military domination of it. Recognition de jure is extended when the constitutional processes of a country have been operative and an executive has been elected.

Not in all cases has the rule of withholding recognition where violence has occurred been adhered to, but where it has been ignored the factual situation, after an executive assumes power, is taken into consideration. In other words, if the executive actually has possession of a country and the public appears to acquiesce in the result, recognition is usually extended.

In the present instance, it is the United States and the Allied countries which are accomplishing the military domination of France. The responsibility, therefore, rests upon the Allied governments to exercise every caution that the public will of France is respected. Do the people of France want Gen. De Gaulle? A few newspaper dispatches say they do, but such a small part of French territory—about one per cent—has actually been liberated that no proper judgment can as yet be formed on this point.

Dignified Attitude

Through all the controversy the president and secretary of state have maintained a dignified and proper attitude. They have now shown by their invitation to Gen. De Gaulle to come to Washington, and by the friendly reception given him that the questions before the American government are so fundamental that they cannot at this time be resolved.

The discussion with Gen. De Gaulle here, it has been announced, is centering on problems connected with the military operations. Co-operative plans are being worked out. It is assumed that, as soon as each area is liberated, the French national committee will send in its officials to help in the civil administration, but our military authority will remain until a substantial part of France has been liberated and until such time as a substantial number of French citizens can decide by ballot or convention or meeting of their parliament who they want to lead them.

Superfortresses Menace to Japan, Simpson Asserts

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

Associated Press War Analyst

Events across the Pacific have taken a sharp turn for the better to match developments in the roaring Russian-Allied three-front war against the Nazi-Nipponese Axis in Europe.

The second flight of B-29 Superfortress bombers from China to blast at the main Nipponese West coast naval base of Sasebo puts Tokyo on notice of the aerial cross fire being prepared against it. The Japanese main fleet soon can feel secure nowhere, at home bases or at sea, against the rising tide of sea and air power being brought to bear against it.

Jap Fleet Hiding

Whether any portion of that fleet lay at Sasebo when the B-29s came over to repay in kind for Pearl Harbor is yet to be disclosed. It cannot be doubted that the attack stepped up sharply the heavy attrition being taken of the Japanese navy and cargo fleet. There was already ample evidence that enemy shipping in the Pacific theater is going down faster than it can be replaced.

The second Superfortress raid on Japan upon the seventh anniversary of her unprovoked attack on China, lent immediate support to the Chung Kai-Shek anniversary statement to this war weary and ill-equipped people that help was coming. And to cap it came Chungking disclosure that the enemy offensive in Hunan province had been definitely blunted at Hangyang.

Stopped by Americans

Chinese spokesmen gave full credit to the American air force in China for crucial aid in checking the foe.

The Japanese drive along the Peiping-Hankow-Canton railway was primarily aimed at preventing American use of Southeastern China air bases. The Chinese victory at Hangyang foreshadows new super-bomber raids against the heart of the Nipponese war effort in Japan itself.

SIMPLE VICTUALS ARE SUPER

EASY TO MAKE, EASY TO EAT... Lemon cream summer pie with berries.

By CHARLOTTE ADAMS
AP Food Editor

The premise that beauty is an almost inevitable concomitant of simplicity seems to me to hold good for practically every department of living. It is my business, however, to convince you that simple food is beautiful, and that's a thought I find quite easy to defend against all comers.

In the first place, if you are the cook and you will stick to preparing simple food you will be more beautiful because you will be less harassed. In the second place, your whole family will be more beautiful if you offer simple food because it is the most healthful and glowing health is beauty.

And in the third place, simple food itself is beautiful because, well cooked, it can stand on its own merits and doesn't need the support of marshmallows and maraschino cherries and chocolate fudge sauce to maintain its standing! Each of those three is a fine food, by the way, if it's rightly used. What I'm getting at is—don't pour fudge sauce over a doughnut! Simplicity needn't be stark. You can use some decoration with eye-appealing effect if it's appropriate to the food at hand. My plea is that a marshmallow in a cup of hot chocolate is where it belongs, for the young at least. On top of a fruit salad complete with mayonnaise it is out of place and I think looks rather embarrassed and fancy—as it should be. Bunches of watercress, sprigs of parsley or dill, and wedges of lemon are proper decorations for fish and meat dishes because they are things which can be eaten with the main food at hand and enhance its charms, not only for the eye, but for the palate. Whole cloves stuck into the lemon slices you serve with tea not only look handsome on the plate, but add good flavor to the tea. All these types of decoration for food are simple to achieve and, if they're done carefully, beautiful.

That's the next point about the beauty of simplicity. It must be carefully and thoughtfully arranged. Messiness is never attractive. You might say that the simplest way to serve food is to dump it onto plates. Really attractive simplicity takes more than that. The way food looks has much to do with appetite. So to achieve the maximum of beauty you must serve your simple food neatly.

Illustrated here is a dessert which is simple, easy to make and to decorate. Everybody wants a piece—and then another—because it looks so good. Try it and see.

Lemon Cream Summer Pie

2 cups quick oats 1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup melted 1/2 teaspoon vitaminized 1/2 teaspoon margarine 1 tablespoon
1/2 cup sugar boiling water

Measure quick oats into a bowl. Add margarine, sugar, salt and allspice. Stir well with fork. Sprinkle water over mixture and stir again.

Turn into lightly greased pie plate and press down and against sides firmly with bottom of measuring cup. Bake at 350 degrees twenty minutes. Cool and fill with:

Filling
2 egg yolks 1/2 teaspoon
1/2 cup sugar 1/2 teaspoon lemon
1/2 cup white 1/2 cup undrained
corn syrup evaporated
1/2 cup lemon milk or light juice cream
1 tablespoon 1/2 cup cold water
plain gelatin 2 egg whites
1/2 cup sugar 1/2 cup sugar

Beat egg yolks very light with sugar, corn syrup and salt. Add lemon juice, rind and evaporated milk or cream. Soak gelatin in cold water and then dissolve it over hot water in the double boiler. Add to lemon mixture. Chill until "quaky." Beat egg whites stiff. Add sugar to them and beat until points are formed. Fold into lemon mixture which has also been beaten light. Turn into crust. Chill until firm. Garnish as desired. Our illustration shows strawberry halves and sugared mint leaves. Yield: one nine-inch pie.

Russians Advance

Wilno-Brest Litovsk line seemed to be fading rapidly.

Brest, Litovsk and Daugavpils (Dvinsk) both were bombed heavily Thursday night. The communists said many military trains were destroyed. Fuel and supply dumps were blown up and large fires broke out in and near the rail yards in both cities.

At Gaukavpils, the Soviet war bulletin said, "almost the entire area of the junction was set afire."

In Moscow Yustas Paletskis, chairman of the presidium of the supreme Soviet for Lithuania, announced that the Germans had put Wilno under close martial law, with a curfew from 8 p. m. to 5 a. m. and no one permitted to walk the streets at any time with more than one other person.

Dewey, who had just motored ninety-seven miles from Albany, accompanied by a busload of newspapermen, said he was "touched and pleased" by the welcome.

Lonaconing Sailor Writes Parents About Experiences in Invasion

James W. Arnold Tells of Being in Action Aboard LST Boat

By MARIE MERRBACH

LONACONING, July 7—James W. Arnold, RM 3-c, first Lonaconing sailor reported to take part in the invasion of France on June 6, wrote his parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Arnold, 66 West Main street, recently about his part in the invasion.

"We were given permission early this morning to disclose our whereabouts of the last week to you so I immediately sat down and told you everything about it," Arnold wrote.

"After rereading it a few times however I am convinced that the censor would have to be blind in order to let it pass so I suppose the best thing to do is to start all over again."

"As you have probably surmised we have been in France and have been a little of the same as you, I don't believe we saw anything in comparison with what the soldiers had to go through. We had no fighting at all during the daytime but the German bombers started coming in just as soon as the sun went down and they kept us pretty busy until dawn. They also had some fighters for strafing purposes but the barrage we put up was sufficient to make most of them keep their distance. I wasn't so scared as I imagined I would be but a few times when things got pretty hot I would have settled to have been somewhere else."

"I suppose you can read a lot more in the newspapers than I am allowed to tell you but I wanted to let you know that we did something over here besides wait on our next liberty. Now that they have things coming to a head I hope they keep before long. Before the invasion most of the boys were willing to bet that we would be home before Christmas, 1945. Perhaps they are willing to lower it to about 1944 now."

"Now don't worry because I believe my luck will hold out for a little while yet anyhow."

Arnold, who serves aboard an LST, received his training at Bainbridge, Md., Auburn, Ala., and Camp Beaufort, Norfolk, Va., before going overseas in April.

He returned to the university for post graduate work.

Plaque Dedication Sunday

The plaque with the names of fifty-seven boys and one girl, erected in the school grounds of the Beryl, W. Va., school by the Parent Teacher association, Boy Scouts and Beryl Fire company, honoring those from Beryl and Hampshire in the armed forces, will be dedicated Sunday afternoon, at 2 o'clock.

The address will be delivered by Judge Robert McVeigh Drane, Piedmont.

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN. MINNEAPOLIS, July 7 (AP)—The teams of Kai Kaiser-Job Hamilton and Nelson-Job McSpaden tied today for the lead in the $10,000 Golden Valley invitation best ball tournament after the tournament had narrowed down to the end of the fifth round to an exceptionally close race.

Although making a best ball of 65, eight under par, in the morning round, the Nelson-McSpaden power-house could do no more than break even with the inspired Twin Cities combine of Les Bolstad and Joe Coria. In the afternoon, however, Nelson-McSpaden gained a one-up margin over the entry of Jimmy Hines-Willie Goggin after posting a 66 to the New York team's 67. This gave the favored Nelson-McSpaden a four-plus five count in the scoring system for fifty-four holes.

Kaiser-Hamilton also were stopped without an advantage in the morning session by Harry Cooper and Ellsworth Vines—each two-stroke carding a 66. Vines missed a three-foot birdie putt on the last hole for a win.

In the day's second eighteen, Kaiser-Hamilton scored a 65 to best P. Chick Harbert and Mike Turner, one up, and take a plus five lead. Hamilton, 1944 North-South champion from Evansville, Ind., shot his second eagle three of the tournament on the thirteenth hole by planting a spoon shot seven feet from the pin and ramming in the putt.

Following these two leading twosomes were Hines-Goggin and Sam Byrd and Johnny Revolta, with plus three tallies.

Byrd-Revolta gained contention by firing a 63 in the morning round to defeat Harbert-Turner three up, and then offering a 66 for a one-up advantage over Cooper-Vines.

To baseball in general, Egan contributes a reputation as a story teller. One of his favorite yarns concerns the signing of Cullenbine who is having five years with the Cleveland Indians.

Navin and Egan were sitting in a field box of the Detroit park when a fireman's doubleheader was in progress. Between games, Egan's attention was fastened on a skinny kid in corduroy pants who was trying to interest someone in a game of catch.

"What a Boy!" "Just a moment, Mr. Navin," said Egan, who happened out on the field. Presently he emerged from the dugout with a fugo bat with which he had been playing.

"I never saw him play a game," related Egan, "but somehow I just liked his action."

After the Tigers outscored the Cleveland Indians 10-0 today, Egan said that he was sure that the kid in the seventh while collecting their tying run. The box:

Detroit Soul Locates Talent In Own Backyard

Egan Blasts Notion All Good Players Are from South and West

By WATSON SPOELSTRA. DETROIT, July 7 (AP)—For thirty years, Wish Egan has thoroughly blasted the notion that all good players are from the South and Far West.

If you know your baseball, you'll readily recall that Wish Egan—Aloysius J. Egan, head scout of the Detroit Tigers—is one of the most renowned ivory hunters in the business. By conservative estimates, at least twenty players he signed are in the major leagues or would be if there wasn't a war.

On the payroll of a particularly wealthy club, Egan could write his own ticket to track down a prospect in Tuscaloosa or Tacoma. However, Egan makes his finds right in his own backyard.

Largely through his initiative, Egan has procured from Michigan and other Midwestern states such standouts as Hal Newhouse, Roy Cullenbine, Dick Wakefield, Mike Tresh, Barney Mocksky, Benny McCoy, Maurice Van Robays and Frank Overmire.

Former Pitcher Egan is a silver-haired former pitcher who wore the uniform of Detroit and the St. Louis Cardinals shortly after the turn of the century. When his arm went dead, he turned to umpiring college and sandlot games. A tip he sent to the late Frank Navin, who was then Detroit club, on a prospect led to Egan's employment as a scout.

From small beginnings, Egan's career grew with the development of the vast Detroit sandlot organization. For many years Egan got the cream of the crop merely for the asking, but now nearly every major club has on hand a scout or an assistant known to the trade as a bird dog.

To baseball in general, Egan contributes a reputation as a story teller. One of his favorite yarns concerns the signing of Cullenbine who is having five years with the Cleveland Indians.

Navin and Egan were sitting in a field box of the Detroit park when a fireman's doubleheader was in progress. Between games, Egan's attention was fastened on a skinny kid in corduroy pants who was trying to interest someone in a game of catch.

"What a Boy!" "Just a moment, Mr. Navin," said Egan, who happened out on the field. Presently he emerged from the dugout with a fugo bat with which he had been playing.

Reds' Win Streak Broken by Giants

CINCINNATI, July 7 (AP)—Young Charlie Schanz tripped up the Cincinnati Reds today and broke their four-game winning streak with a 4-2 decision for the Philadelphia Bluejays.

The Jays gave Schanz top support, with three double plays pulling him out of tight spots. One came with the bases loaded in the eighth.

The single gave the Reds a run in the second and the Phils tied it in the fourth the same way and went ahead with the rest of their runs in the sixth on two singles, a sacrifice, and Coaker Triplett's double. The box:

HAEGG BREAKS MARK FOR 1,500-METER RUN

GOTHENBURG, July 7 (AP)—Gunder Haegg clipped two seconds off the world record for 1,500 meters today, racing the distance in 3:43 to average a defeat suffered two weeks ago at the hands of Arne Anderson.

Anderson, holder of the world mark of 3:45, set AUG. 17, 1943, also bettered his previous record today as he was clocked in 3:44. He finished second to Haegg in today's event.

Two weeks ago, over the same distance at Stockholm, Anderson defeated Haegg in their first meet in two years, turning the 1,500 meters in 3:48.8 while Haegg was timed in 3:50.2.

Fake Veteran Gets Eight Month Term In Federal Prison

Baltimore Man Was Arrested Here on Tips of Red Cross and VFW

Arrested here May 19 by federal authorities while posing as an honorably discharged veteran of the present war, James Ellwood Hoffman, 26, Baltimore, was sentenced to eight months in federal prison Thursday by Judge William C. Coleman on a charge of not having his draft registration card in his possession.

The federal prison to which Hoffman will be sent will be designated by the attorney general.

Hoffman was arrested here on tips by the Red Cross and Henry Hart Post, No. 1411, Veterans of Foreign Wars, after he had used a fake VFW membership card, authorities said. Before his arrest he had obtained $32 from the Red Cross and the local veterans organization.

After he was taken into custody Hoffman admitted that he was dishonorably discharged from the army and that the VFW card he carried was a bogus one. He had been staying in a local hotel.

At the trial Thursday, testimony revealed that Hoffman had a long criminal record for obtaining money on false pretenses and that he had served six months in the Maryland House of Correction on a state charge while he was a deserter from the army.

Pfc. Howard B. Green, whose wife, Mrs. Virginia Will Green, lives at 605 Columbia street, is credited with being one of the four American soldiers who were the first to shoot down a robot rocket plane over England.

In a recent letter to his wife, Pfc. Green, stationed with an ordnance maintenance unit in Southern England, described his experience as "the only fun we've had in a long time." The action took place June 15, he wrote, when his battery commander, Capt. Albert E. Reuning, Jackson, Miss., saw the projectile hurtling toward them.

Using a 40 mm gun, which they had repaired for delivery to an anti-aircraft unit in Normandy, the crew scored a direct hit on the robot plane in the second burst of gunfire, and it exploded in midair.

Pfc. Green served in the coast artillery in Hawaii from 1936 until 1939, and was then placed in the reserves. From 1939 until 1941 he worked at the Navy yard in Washington, and was called to active duty in February, 1941.

After training at Fort Eustis, Va., and Fort Bragg, N. C., Pfc. Green went on battle maneuvers in Tennessee and was then transferred to Camp Davis, N. C. He went overseas last November.

He married Virginia Will of Columbia avenue February 16, 1941. They have one daughter, Vicki Dawn. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Green, live in Mt. Savage.

A brother, Pvt. Joseph Green, is a prisoner of the Japanese in the Philippine Islands. He has not been heard from in over a year.

Kiddie Bond Show To Be Held Soon

Admission to Liberty Theater Will Be Limited to Bond Purchasers

A "Kiddie War Bond Show" with admission limited to children of school age who buy or sell a Series E war bond between now and next Wednesday, will be held at the Liberty theater at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning, Reynold Wallach, local chairman of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' War Activity committee, announced yesterday.

All local bond selling agencies have received a supply of tickets to the show and they will be given out when bonds are purchased either by children or by adults solicited by children.

Tickets can be obtained to the show by purchasing bonds at any local bank, the Strand or Liberty theaters, Rocauma's, McCrory's, Montgomery Ward's or the post office.

The show will feature Walt Disney's technicolor production, "Dumbo," as well as cartoons and other short subjects.

The show has been arranged to help boost the sale of Series E war bonds in the Fifth War Loan campaign so that Allegany county's quota of $1,000,000 in E bonds can be met. The present total stands at considerably less than $400,000.

Although the drive is scheduled to end today, E bonds sold the remainder of this month will be credited to the county's total in the campaign.

Many Local Motorists Have Not Bought Auto-Use Tax
More than 7,000 motorists in the Cumberland area are violating the federal law which requires every motor vehicle operated on the highway to carry a $5 auto-use tax stamp on the windshield, according to records of the local post office sale of the stamps.

James W. Webster, assistant postmaster, said that at noon yesterday 3,650 of the stamps had been sold. The number is approximately 1,100 more than was reported a week ago today.

Webster announced that only $5 tax stamps will be sold by the post office, explaining that motorists who do not expect to operate their cars all year should purchase monthly stamps, costing about forty-one cents each, at the Bureau of Internal Revenue office on the third floor of the post office building.

While no instructions have been received by the local Internal Revenue office to check cars violating the law, it is expected that deputy collectors will begin their annual inspection of cars in this area within a short time.

Persons caught driving cars not bearing the stamps are liable to a $25 fine or thirty days' imprisonment or both.
